DAILY NATIONAL WHIG,

ORTHINGTON G. SNETHEN, Edite WASHINGTON, D. C.,

TUESDAY MORNING, MAY 1, 1840.

Tay, gentlemen, are not the Whige als (General Tay, of themal I is it stonge that stonge the mortal), who despise him your hears 1—Westington Wide.

The General Is very confiding, no doubt; but if the droublence in these "Whig fielend" during the ar, he never would have got home to honor them peace.—Phil. Pennsylvanian.

Unless we are much mistaken, unless our nemory is very treacherous, indeed, we think we remember distinctly, that it was the strong resentant yesterday, and a considerable Whig gain in the Legislature.

The Spotsylvania or 8th District which elected to the last Congress Mr. Beale by 153 majority, is now reported very close with strong probabilities of the election of Mr. Forber, the Whig candidate, which, if successful, is a Whig gain. arm of the Whig volunteers, which won those glorious battles, that made such a fame for the Old Hero. We think we remember, arm of the Whig volunteers, which won those glorious battles, that made such a fame for the Old Hero. We think we remember, too, that the Whigs, who hurried to the field in the ranks, were asten to two of our opponents. But to this a truce. We give all honor to Democrats as well as to Whigs, who united to uphold our flag in Mexico and those Democrats who unite now with Whigs to uphold his administration, enjoy his confidence quite as warmly as do his Whig friends, of which fact, they have already received evidences and will receive more.

TAYLOR DEMOCRATS.
It is not to be denied, that thousands of honest and well-meaning democrats, whose heads were about as soft as their hearts, were guiled in the late election by the deceptive, "mo-party"—"anti proceedings with atroop probabilities of the election of Russel, while candidate, which is election of Russel, while candidate, which is accessful, is a Whig gain.

The compliment paid to the intelligence of our TAYLOR Democratic brethren, by our respectable contemporary, the Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist, will, we doubt not, be fully appreciated by them. It is only another evidence, that, the sole condition, upon which freemen can be members of the Democratic party, is the absolute, total surrender of their judgment and conscience to the keeping of the few, who assume to be the sachems and leaders of the Democratic party, is the absolute, total surrender of their judgment and conscience to the keeping of the few, who assume to be the sachems and leaders of the Democratic party, is an intolerant, as ever the Church of Rome was, in the gloom of the dark ages. Let any Democrat dare to prefer any other man for a public office, but him, who shall be set up as a candidate by the managers behind the scenes, and that instant the dissentient is condemned to excemmunication and all the horrors of a political auto dafe, if he cannot be made to recant his error. Forthwith, the Democratic properties are the properties of the Democratic properties. The partial returns from seven counties give 50 majority for living, Whig, over Bocock, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress by majority for living, Whig, over Bocock, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress by a smajority for living, Whig, over Bocock, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress by a smajority for living, Whig, over Bocock, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress by a smajority for living, Whig, over Bocock, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress by a smajority for living, Whig, over Bocock, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress by a smajority for living, were Bocock, Leos, who was elected to he at Congress and she congress and she continued to excendition and the last congress by a smajority for living, were Bocok, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress of the Policy Boto, were Bocok, Leos, who was elected to the last Congress of the Policy Boto, were Bocok, Leos, who was elected to the Boto, were bottomed a political auto day, if the cannot be made to recand his error. Manon, S. C., April 25.

The LATE Snow Storm.—From all sections of sor District, and the adjoining ones, we learn that the planters have suffered seriously. Their corn and cotton which were above ground, will almost entirely have to be replanted. It is not confined, however, to these, but all the small grain which had jointed is lest. Some of our farmers think they may succeed in saving their oats, while others are very doubtful. By and wheat they think totally lost. Most of the planters, on discovering the extent of the injury, inmediately proceeds to p ough up and replant. The want of rain, however, will materially mar the prospects for making a crop.

This Warthers.—On last Wednesday and two following nights we experienced severe frosts On Thursday morning we had thick ice. Many think the cold of these nights did more serious injury than the cold of these nights did more serious injury than the cold of these nights did more serious injury than the cold of these nights did more serious injury than the cold of by the recent frosts will be third.

We learn that the Pec Dec River is lower than it has been for a long time past. We were informed by a geatleman on Saturday last that the steamers warere and Fec Dec, both from Charleston for Cheraw, are aground near Society Hill.

Wateree and Pee Dee, both from Charleston for Cheraw, are aground near Society Hill.

Macon, (Marengo Co.) April 16.

Editor of the Mobile Adsertiser:

This is a sad day with the planters in this region of country. We had a killing frost this morning sweeping off all the cotton, and garden vegetables, except the most hardy. The previous frost of the last March killed all the early cotton, and most of the last March killed all the early cotton, and most of the planters had 10 replant their crops, and the country was well gleaned of seed. Now, it will be the utmost difficulty that stands of cotton can be obtained with the very limited quantity of seed left, on hand and with all-that can be obtained from abroad, in time. Under the most favorable circumstances, the crop must be a month later than usual air coming forward. The time for the maturing of the cotton crops extends from the 29th of July to the Cotton crops extends from the 29th of July to git the 29th October—say about twelve weeks. By this calamity we have lout four weeks in the age of our crop, and we are but little north of latitude 32, and the bulk of the crop in the United States is grown between 32 and 35 degrees. Assuming a full a crop to be two million four hundred thousand (2,400,000) belies—and bearing in mind that each week in instruring season is equal to 200,000 belies, you will readily percate what effect this sweeping frost will, have upon the next crop, however favorable the rest of the year may be.

Yours, in haste,

Davron, (Ala.,) April 21.

Heary Frost.—On Sunday night has we were visited by one of the severest frosts that we have ever seen at so late a time in the Spring. Vegetables of nearly every kind are completely killed. The gardens in this vicinity, which but a few days since were so flourishing, are now in ruins. Corn, cotton, beans, a watermelon vines, all shared the same fate. Our jointees are offering 91, and we have heard of 31 50 being offered and refused for cotton seed. Several planters are now offering a bushel of corn for a second in the country, and all the otop brigger of the cotton of the country, and all the otop brigger of the country with the crop of other years.—Argus.

Hunravitae, [Ala.] April 25.

The frost on Sunday night, the 16th inst. seems to have spread over a large extent of country, and caused unprecedented damage to vegetation of almost every description. In Madison and the adjacent counties, the corn has been nipped, and a great deal entirely destroyed—Cotton was not generally up, but the continued cool weather, (without rain for the past Swewesks,) it is feared will prevent a good stand. As far South as Montgomery the destruction of Cotton has been complete, and even in Mobile, the cold was do great as to require clothing and fire for comfort. All North Mississippi has suffered greatly, the cotton has been complete, and even in Mobile, the cold was apprehensions as to the destructive effects of the late frosts are more than realized. Conradt Vintner, the person convicted in our Court a short time ago for the nurder of Mrs. Cooper, of Baltimore County, was brought out this evening and sentenced to be hung. He made quite a speech in answer to the Court, when asked why sentence of draft should not be passed against him. He endeavored to acquit himself of a crime of theft for which he had been convicted some years ago.—Throughout, he manifested great indifference, and said but little in regard to the crime for which he was about being sentenced. The sentence was pronounced in a very appropriate manner by Judge Finch.

I regret to inform you of the death of Nicholas Tracy, formerly High Sheriff of Baltimore city and county. He died yesterday afternoon after a severe and lingering illness. Mr. T. has left many friends to regret his loss.

A young man who entered the name "Augustus W. Purdy, Washington," on the books of the American Hotel, Pratt street, attempted his life on Friday last, in his chamber. He had been visited the night before by a physician, who prescribed for him; and on a second visif, in the morning, he was found by avowing his purpose, was found by the bedside.—An emetic was immediately administered, and he was speedily brought to.
